The first of these is the fact that the number of cases of smallpox has been greatly reduced since the introduction of the

FOREWORD

Although a great deal of data on the MacGhie (Megie, Magie) family was included in various collections on early New Jersey families, it has never before, to my knowledge, been collected and compiled into a sequential history or family tree.

This present compilation has been done primarily in the interest of the grandchildren of Mary Ann Magie, daughter of Josiah Brown Magie, and is not intended for publication.

It was not planned to continue any other line beyond the sixth generation than that of Benjamin Magie, father of Josiah Brown Magie, except as incidental data came to hand, but so many of the descendents of John MacGhie having learned of the project, have kept a continual flow of material coming in, that I am obliged to enlarge the work far beyond the original intent. Any other descendents are invited to contact the author and present any data they may have, to be included in supplements from time to time.

In offering this record, I am well aware that there are many gaps due to lack of dates; that some lines become lost because I have not found further record of their descendents; that in some family units I feel sure I do not have a complete list of all the children. In most instances I have made no attempt to search out descendents of females who married out of the Magie name, and where these lines are extended it is because I already had the record or they came my way by chance. Much of this record is based on information given by other members of the family and by searchers, whose findings I accept, but which are open to correction; and I hope anyone having data which will make correction or extend any of these lines will take the trouble to write me.

I have come across a number of items relating to the name Magie or Megie which I have been unable to fit into the record. I have mentioned these in the last pages of the work. Some may not relate to our family, and the unique spelling used in the source record may have been used mistakenly.

Appreciation is here expressed for the enthusiastic assistance given by Mrs. Harold L. Crane in searching the records of the Second Presbyterian Church of Elizabeth, New Jersey.

Also much credit is due to Mr. Wm. E. Townley, of Elizabeth, whose collection of Data on the early New Jersey families has been made available.

Thanks, too, to the many Magie descendents who have furnished data on their own lines for this record. Particular thanks go to Marguerite Cameron Conover who loaned me a family chart which had been drawn by her mother, Susette Pignolet Cameron, and which supplied much on which I had previously been able to find nothing, and verified that which I had already found.

Inez M. Bennett.

"ANCESTRY OF THE MAGEE (MAGIE) FAMILY IN THE UNITED STATES"

"The Magee (Magie) family in the United States is a very old one.

"When King James II of England attempted to force the Catholic religion upon England and Scotland about 1680, his wrath against the Presbyterians was exceedingly bitter, and he persecuted them without mercy; even standing them in rows and shooting them down. During this persecution the "Magees" came to America from Scotland. They were called Blue Light Presbyterians because they had to meet in caves, and it was their custom to announce the time of their meeting by burning blue lights on the hills.

"Throughout the generations the spelling of the name has been changed from the original Scottish "MacGhie", successively through McGhie, McGie, Megie, Magie, and finally Magee. Variations in spelling were for the most part due to recording clerks spelling by the way it sounded to them, and to misreading of handwritings, until the family of Michael Magie adopted and consistently used the spelling "Magie". Later all the family of Josiah Brown Magie, except his son John Morrison Magie, adopted the spelling "Magee".

"The Magees settled in New Jersey, at Elizabeth City, where the name was "McGie" and "Megie".

"Benjamin Magie was born in Elizabeth, New Jersey, March 9, 1779, and there married Sarah Brown, who was born there Dec. 31, 1777.

"Benjamin and his half-brother (Haines) went west. Benjamin and his wife Sarah settled in 1812 in Butler County, Ohio, 25 miles north of Cincinnati. His half-brother went to "Fort Dearborn", now Chicago, and established a general merchandise store. Benjamin used to pilot wagon trains to Chicago, and once took David, his grandson, with him to the store, where his great half-uncle gave him a cap, the first cap in Medina township, (Indiana) not home-made and not hand-made.

"Benjamin Magie had six boys and two girls; Josiah, Benjamin, William, David, Richard, and John; Catharine and Rhoda. Josiah, William, and David were good men and true; Benjamin, Richard, and John were intemperate and reckless. Benjamin went to Texas and died there. His sons were in the Confederate Army. Rhoda married Silas Elliott and moved to Paris, Illinois. The rest of the family lived and died near Hamilton, Ohio."

MACGHIE, MACGHEE, MACGEE:

Mag-Aoidh, - Son of Aoidh, (meaning Son of Fire), and so same as Mackay.

Gilmighel MacEthe of Dumfries rendered homage 1296 (Bain II, p. 198). In the following year, as Gille Michel MacGethe, he was thanked by Edward I for putting down evildoers and for other services. (Hist. Decs. II, p. 197; Bain II, p. 234.)

Neel McEthe, Gillecryst McEthe, Hoen (Welsh "Owen", Gaellic "Eoghan") McEthe, Cuthbert, his brother, and all of the lineage of Clenafren, made submission to Edward I. in 1298, (Bain II, p. 253).

Michael MacGethe was juror on an inquisition in Annandale, 1304, (ibid p. 412.)

Gilbert McGeth was custumar, or collector of customs, in the busy Kirkcudbrith, 1331, (ERI, p. 374), and Michael Macge, or MacGeth, landholder in Galloway, was admitted to the king's peace by Edward III in 1339.

Michael Magy, a kinsman of the tyrant David Menzies, in Orkney, is mentioned in 1424, and John Makky, a retainer of Menzies (Menyas) had a safe conduct in England in the same year (Bain IV, p. 963).

Gilbert M'Gy is styled Lord of Balmage in 1426. Robert Macgye (M'Gy, Macge, or Magy) was the king's mime 1444-1449.

John Makke made oblation by procurator in 1463 for the vicarage of St. Michael's, Dumfries, (Edgar, p. 135). A composition was made with William Makgey de Eodem in Dumfries 1473, (ALHT I, p. 6), and Schir Ihone McGy, persone of Ronaldsay, is recorded in 1480 (OSRI, p. 53). George McGe, or Makge, appears in Irvine, 1500, 1506 (Simon 6, Irvine I, p. 159).

Mungo Makghe was reidare at Holywod, 1574, (RMR), and Ion MacGhey was vicar and minister of Kildalton 1596. Alexander McGhie, heir of Hugh McGhie, son of Hugh McGhie of Atrochie, 1673, (Retours, Aberdeen, 416), and Margaret McGigh is in Auchlergaven 1682. (DPD I, p. 486).

The Galwegian family of MacGhie gave the name to Balmaghie, (MacGhie's town).

M'Ge, 1555; M'Gey 1473; M'Ghye 1648; M'Gye 1482; MacGhie 1684; Makge 1550, Makgie 1527, Makghie 1617, M'Egh, MaGhie, Mackghie, Makgie, McGie. In old Galloway documents McGhie and M'Kie are used indiscriminately.

(Surnames of Scotland. Black 1946)

Galloway: a district of South Scotland included in Wigtown and Kirkcudbright counties. The Mull of Galloway is a rocky headland of Wigtownshire; its southern extremity called the Rhinns of Galloway is the most southerly point of Scotland. Galloway is not an official nor political division.

(Columbia Encyclopedia.)

MACGHIE -- A clan, sept, or dependent of the Clan Mackay. (Pronounced McKee).

These forms are found in the Hebrides and Galloway.

Alexander, progenitor of the Mackays, was succeeded by his son Walter; and he by his son Martin, who was slain in Lochaber; from whom it is supposed the Mackies, MacGhies, and MacCries of Galloway and Ireland, and the Mackays of Argyle descended.

The old family of MacGhie of Balmaghie which for about 600 years possessed estates in Galloway, used the same arms as the Chief of the Mackays. They continued in possession of their lands till 1786.

The Mackays of Argyllshire are frequently alluded to as the MacGhees.

(from Clans, Septs, and Regiments of the Scottish Highlands:- by Frank Adams and Innes of Learney.)

Magietown, (Essex County, New Jersey), was first settled by John Megie (McGie) 1699-1700. He was a blacksmith and came over from Scotland during the period of persecution 1685-87. He purchased land just west of the "town plot" (Elizabethtown), which in great part his descendants have occupied until the present time. (1880)

(Clayton's History of Union and Middlesex Counties.)

In America the spelling of the name progressed through Megie of the first settler, Magie at about 1800, and after that date various scattered descendants began using the spelling Magee, which is the same spelling as used by the Irish branch of the line for 400 years.

WODROW'S HISTORY OF THE SUFFERING OF THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND FROM THE RESTORATION TO THE REVOLUTION.

Rev. Robert Wodrow, Minister of the Gospel at Eastwood, Glasgow, MDCCCXXX, Sect. XII, page 331.

"Of the hardships of the prisoners transported to America with Pitlochy in September, particularly those of the laird of Barmagechan,

"Having in the former section given the history of the sufferings of these good people who were taken to Dunnotter this summer, I am now to follow a good many of them to America.

"Argyle's invasion being now over, and no more fears from that airt (?) the council began to weary of the prisoners at Dunnotter, and brought them back to Leith, as we have seen, where another essay was made to bring them to comply with the impositions now put on people in their circumstances, and upon their refusal, they resolved to send good numbers of them to the plantations, and so rid themselves of any more trouble about them. Accordingly, after near three months' severe treatment at Dunnotter, they come to Leith, two of them were left behind as dying men, of which Quintin Dick, so frequently mentioned was one, and in his remarks formerly cited, he hath some sweet observations upon providence timeing his sickness at this juncture. He recovered in some time, and was overlooked, and got safe home to his own house and lived some years to reflect with pleasure, and record the lord's wonderful steps of kindness to him, and his goodness under and after all those sore troubles he underwent. Not a few who were in the great vault were sick, and allowed horses upon their own charges. The Reverend Mr. Frazer was very infirm and weak, and yet the captain by no means would permit him to have the benefit of a hired horse, as several others had. The foot had sixty-six miles to travel, and their hands tied behind their back with small cords. From Dunnotter they were carried to Montrose tolbooth the first night, from thence to Arbroath, and from thence to Dundee, from thence, upon the Sabbath, to the Cowpar of Fife, from thence to Burntisland, and thence to Leith.

"The council were pleased to come down to Leith, and sit in the Tolbooth there and spent some time in the re-examination of the prisoners. It was but very few complied with their impositions and they were dismissed. Others who were very weakly, and had some friends to intercede, got off upon a bond of compearance when called, as Mr. William M'Millan, who gave bond as above under the penalty of five thousand merks. The most part of them refusing the oaths, and to satisfy in other particulars, were perpetually banished to America, and many of them were gifted to the laird of Pitlochy, to be carried thither. William Hannah, formerly mentioned, in the parish of Tunnergarth, when brought before the lords, and refusing the oath of allegiance with the supremacy, was threatened with banishment. He told them that he was now too old to work or to go to war, and he reckoned he would be useless there. Old general Dalziel took him up very bitterly, and replied, he was not too old then to be hanged, and he would hang well enough. That same day as my information bears, August 22nd, the general died suddenly, and William's age and sickness prevented his being carried away with the rest. In a few weeks he fell very ill in prison, and appearing to be in a dying condition, he was liberated, and got home, after very hard sufferings for three years and more.

"The names of as many as are come to my hand, who were banished, shall be insert just now. Let me only remark that such who had not to pay their freight were gifted to George Scot, laird of Pitlochy, who freighted a Newcastle ship, Richard Hutton, master, bound for New Jersey; and all the persons now banished were committed to his care. I cannot give an account of all the names of such as were banished with Pitlochy Several of their testimonies and letters they wrote to their friends toward the end of August are before me; and particularly an original letter, from about twenty-eight of them, dated Leigh Road, August 28th, 1685, directed to their friends, too long to here insert. In short, they signify "That now being to leave their own native and covenanted land by an unjust sentence of banishment, for owning the truth and holding by duty, and studying to keep by their covenants; and that their sentence of banishment ran chiefly because they refused the oath of allegiance, which in conscience they could not take, because in so doing they thought they utterly declined the Lord Jesus Christ, from having any power in his own house, and practically would, by taking it, say he was not King and head of his church and over their consciences; and on the contrary, this was to take and put in his room a man whose breath is in his nostrils, yea, a man that is a sworn enemy to religion, an avowed papist, whom by our covenants we are bound to withstand and disown, and that agreeably to the scripture, Deut. XVII, 14, 15". They go on to leave their testimony against the evils of the times, and for the preaching of the gospel in the fields and houses, and sign as follows:

"John Kincaid	George Muir
George Johnston	Robert Young
Thomas Jackson	Andrew Paterson
John Harvey	John Foord
Christopher Strang	William Spreul
Peter Russel	Robert M'Ewen
John Henderson	John Seton
John Gilfillan	Charles Honyall
James Grierson	James Forsyth
Walter M'Igne	John M'Ghie
Adam Howie	James Muirhead
Annabel Gordon	Margaret Leslie
Agnes Steven	Margaret Forrest
Jean Moffat	Annabel Jackson.

"Besides those, I have before me letters of John Arbuckle, John M'Queen, a letter signed I.D. and K.G., and another letter signed Janet Symington, all of them banished at this time, with many others whose names are not come to me; we shall just now find some of them among those who died at sea in the voyage. In the same ship likewise were Mr. John Frazer, and that excellent gentleman Robert M'Lellan of Barmagechan, of whom more just now, William Niven in Pollockshaws, with a good many others who had endured Dunnotter cruelties. And it is mostly from Mr. Frazer and Barmegechan's account of this voyage that I am to frame the following narrative of it. Several others were likewise in the vessel, who retired from their native country to settle in America, as the Reverend Mr. Archibald Riddel, who we had in the former part of this history, and his wife, and several of the relations of such who went over.

"The prisoners lay sometime in the road of Leith before all was ready, and sailed on the 5th day of September. Information before me bear that Pitlochy tampered with some of them, particularly James Forsythe, to get money before they sailed, offering for five pounds sterling paid now, to set him at liberty as soon as they came to land. But James answered he would give him no money to carry him out of his native land, adding that he had done nothing worthy of banishment. After they had turned the land-end, the fever began to rage through the ship, especially among such who had been in the great vault of Dunnotter. Not a few of them were sick when they came aboard, and no wonder considering the barbarous treatment they had met with; besides, much of the flesh which the captain of the ship had provided for the prisoners began to stink before they sailed out of Leith road, and in a few days it was not eatable. In a month's time the fever turned malignant, and few or none in the ship escaped it, in so much that it was usual to cast overboard three or four dead bodies in one day. Most of the ship's crew, except the captain and the boat-swain, died. Pitlochie who had freighted the ship, with his excellent lady died likewise, and so enjoyed nothing of the produce of near a hundred prisoners gifted him by the council; and near seventy persons died at sea. I have before me a list of the passengers and the prisoners who died at sea. It concerns the design of this history only to record the names of the prisoners and they are as follows:

"Thomas Graham	Gilbert Monorgan
John Smith	William Cunningham
John Muirhead	Thomas Jackson
Kathrine Kellie	Andrew M'Lellan
Thomas Russel	John Hodge
Thomas Gray	John Ramm
John Swinton	John Kippen
William Sprat	James Wardrope
John M'Kenman	Thomas Finlater
John Hutchinson of Wardlaw	William M'Millan
Agnes Cohalh	John Kirkland.

"Perhaps several of the passengers might be likewise sufferers, but able to pay their freights; but I have not set them down, for shortness. I find further in the list Mr. John Vernor and his wife, Pitlochy and his lady, and the Lady Aitherny, Mrs. Riddel, Mrs. Eupham Rigg lady Aitherny's daughter, William Rigg her son, Mr. William Ged, and Mr. William Aisdale, minister. Notwithstanding of this raging sickness and the great death, much severity was used toward the prisoners at sea, by the master of the ship and others; those under deck were not allowed to go about worship by themselves, and when they essayed it, the captain would throw down great planks of timber upon them to disturb them, and sometimes to the danger of their lives. We have heard of the badness of their provisions already.

"Many were the disasters of this voyage. The ship was at the utmost hazard by the breaking up of a leak at two several times. They had several calms and some pretty severe storms. The captain, after Pitlochy's death, began to tamper with Mr. Johnston his son-in-law, who now had the disposal of the prisoners; and it was projected to carry them into Jamaica or Virginia and the master offered to take all the prisoners there from him and pay him in bulk. It was urged for this, that the markets were much better there for servants than in New Jersey. When they were thus treating, and near an issue, very much for the advantage of the passengers and prisoners, the wind turns straight for New Jersey, and they were forced to sail with it. There They arrived about the middle of December, after they had been about fifteen weeks at sea. At their landing many of them were sick; and Mr. Frazer observes that a worthy gentleman from the west of Scotland died among their hands as they were carrying him ashore. The same person observes that "partly of such as voluntarily offered themselves to go abroad from the Kingdom of Scotland, and partly of such as were persecuted by banishment, there were upwards of 60 died at sea, whose blood (adds he) will be found in the skirts of the enemies, as really as if they had died at the cross and Grass-market of Edinburgh". Before the prisoners came ashore, it was once intended by Mr. Johnston, to whom Pitlochy had made them over, to stop their getting out of the ship till they should all of them under their hand, sign a voluntary declaration, as it was called, that they offered four years' service at that place. But this they would not yeild unto; yea, a considerable number of them joined in a protestation against their banishment, with a large narrative of the hardships they endured during their voyage, and formerly, for conscience sake.

"When the prisoners came ashore, the people who lived on the coastside, and had not the gospel settled among them, were harsh enough to them and showed them no kindness. A little way up the country there was a town where there was a minister settled, and the inhabitants there were very kind to them. When they had information of the prisoners' circumstances, they invited all who were able to travel, to come and live with them, and sent horses for such as were not; and entertained them that winter freely, and with much kindness. In the following spring, Mr. Johnston, upon his father-in-law's gift of prisoners pursued them, and got them all cited before the court of that province. After hearing both sides, the governor called a jury to sit and cognosce upon the affair. They found that the pannels had not of their own accord come to that ship, nor bargained with Pitlochy for money or service, and therefore, according to the laws of the country, they were assoiled; upon which most of the prisoners retired to New England, where they were very kindly entertained and employed according to their different stations and capacities. Pitlochy proposed to be enriched by the prisoners, and yet he and his lady died at sea on the voyage. He sold what remained of the estate to pay the freight, and much money remaining was spent upon the law-suit in New Jersey. Thus it appears to be but a hazardous venture to make merchandise of the suffering people of God. A good many of the passengers and prisoners died in the plantations; the rest returned to their native country at the happy revolution, --- Mr. Riddel, William Niven and others, and particularly the laird of Barmagechan..."

(from Stillwell's Historical and Genealogical Miscellany, Volume V.)

"The names of all who finally set sail in the ship Henry and Francis from Leith, Scotland, Sept. 5, 1685, can not now be given, the whole number being near 200. The list which follows comprises all mentioned by "Wodrow".

(There follows a list, including the name of JOHN M'GHIE. IMB)

"REDEMPTIONERS" IN NEW JERSEY.

"The great dissatisfaction existing among the lowly and not infrequently in the middle and higher classes throughout Great Britain, especially where the moral sentiment was opposed to the licentiousness of the day, and where many were the subjects of religious oppression, turned the thoughts and steps of many toward the New World where from kinsmen and friends glowing accounts had been written home of the equality of man, his religious freedom, and the land betterment.

"How to reach this Mecca was a problem difficult of solution. Shortly a way arose and there was a strange intermingling of the poor and the rich in the emigration. With the development of this country, laborers of all kinds were needed, and the distressed redeemed themselves by reason of their labor and were discharged with a modest equipment from their late employers.

"The speculative sea captain, the extensive land-holder, the merchant, alike saw the chance for gain and imported this element, indenting each individual in written or printed contracts, of which today a number exist, and which they transferred or "sold" as opportunity arose. The majority of the emigrants were laborers; others came qualified with a knowledge of trade, glaziers, carpenters, blacksmiths, bricklayers, painters, joiners, etc., and the whole were spoken of as "servants" ...

"After the first great exodus - 1682-1685 - , made up entirely of Scotch Protestants, there was apparently some diminution of the numbers which came to this country, and little by little the character of the individual changed so that in the first quarter of the 19th century the Redemptioner was an ordinary case of "contract labor" fired by no lofty religious enthusiasm and probably of no social caste. At what time this type of importation ceased I have not ascertained"

(Stillwell.)

Very shortly after beginning my investigations into the genealogy of the Megie-Magie family, I began to hear about a History of the Magie Family which had been written by William Jay Magie, former Chancellor of New Jersey, but no one seemed to have seen it nor to have any idea where it might be at the present time, if it still existed.

When I later had some correspondence with David Magie 4th of Princeton, N. J., knowing that both he and William Jay Magie had been trustees of the University and must have known each other, I asked him if he had ever heard of this legendary History. Much to my surprise, I received the manuscript by return mail; also much to my disappointment I found that William Jay Magie had completed only the first two chapters of it before his death in 1917. To date any papers he may have had on which he intended basing subsequent chapters have not been discovered. Because of the considerable interest of these chapters to the Magie descendents, I am including them in this work. The manuscript is now in the Public Library of Elizabeth, N. J.

His comments on the changes in spelling of the name are worthy of note.

I quote:

"In the following pages I purpose to set down all the information I have acquired respecting the family of Megie or Magie, to which I belong.

CHAPTER I

"The progenitor of the family on this side of the Atlantic came to New Jersey from Scotland in the year Sixteen Hundred and eighty five. His Christian name was "John". Before he left Scotland he wrote his surname "MacGhie".

"The Historians of the Church of Scotland mention many persons of the name of "MacGhie", who were proceeded against for non-conformity, such as MacGhie of Larg", "MacGhie of Balgoon", and others, including a "MacGhie of Balmagie". As the covenanting and non-conformist interests were very strong in Galloway, a district that included the present counties of Wigtownshire and Kirkcudbrightshire, and as there is a village or town in the latter county called "Balmagie", there is room for conjecture that our John MacGhie, who doubtless was a Covenanter, came from that locality. But all my researches have not enabled me to learn anything of his birth and family. When in Edinburgh in 1894 I noticed in a shop window a little pamphlet entitled "Macs in Galloway", and procured a copy. It was printed in 1888 and professes to give lists of family names commencing with "Mac" in use in Galloway. It shows that such names were written indifferently "M'", "Mc", and "Mac" and discloses a great variety in spelling of the same name. Thus in the lists of such names prior to 1700, occurs one, the spelling of which is reduced to its simplest elements and appears as "M'Ge". In the list of similar names in use after AD 1700 appear such variations as "M'Gee", and "M'Geeie", and "M'Ghie".

"After John MacGhie arrived in New Jersey, all his signatures that I have been able to discover show that he spelt his surname "Megie", unless an exception occurs in his signature to his will. The earliest signature that I have found was made as a witness to the will of William Miller, dated in seventeen hundred and eleven. That signature and those found in the Book of the Associates of Elizabethtown, (now in the library of Princeton University), and appended to an address to the King, of which the late E. L. Meyer published a facsimile, shows that he was not an ignorant man. His handwriting is above the average of that of his associates and neighbors who signed those documents. When John Megie came to execute his own will, on April the 3rd, seventeen hundred and eighty three (*), his signature seems to indicate an unconscious reversion to the original spelling in part. An examination of his signature makes it very clear that although he did not die until February the 3rd, seventeen hundred and thirty-five, he was very weak. The word "John" is written quite plainly and like his usual signature; his surname is commenced by a legible "M" and is followed by a "g" over which appears a mark that may have been an apostrophe but is crossed as if to erase it; the "g" is followed by an old fashioned "e" and that is followed by a letter which seems to be an "h". Thereafter the pen runs on in wavy lines without forming the "i" and "e" which were the last letters of his signature and which were always well formed in his other signatures. That he spelled his surname in Scotland "MacGhie" appears from the accounts of a written protest made by him and others on the eve of their leaving Scotland. A summary of this protest is given by the Scottish Historians above referred to, and will hereafter be more particularly described. Crookshank who wrote one of the Histories, prints the name of those who signed it, and the surname of the John in question is thus spelled. Woodrow, who wrote another history, also gives a summary of the protest and prints the names of the signers. The signature in this case is printed thus: "M'Ghie". This difference is doubtless accounted for by the fact before mentioned that Scotch surnames beginning with "Mac" were spelled indifferently with M', Mc or Mac. The signature to the will at least justifies an inference that in his weakness at the time, John Megie inadvertently turned to the signature of his youth.

"The change in the spelling of his surname made by the John in question was, in my opinion, intentionally made. The handwriting of his signature clearly indicates that the change was not a blunder or a mistake. His adherence to the changed signature indicates a purpose in its adoption. Two reasons may have operated to induce him to make the change. I will hereafter state those reasons when the facts that make them intelligible have been presented.

"The descendants of John Megie retained the spelling of the family name "Megie" for about a century. In the early part of the nineteenth century my father, the Rev. David Magie, D. D. of Elizabeth, New Jersey, and his cousin of the same age, also David, afterward of the City of New York, united in spelling the family name "Magie". Their descendants and others in the family have adopted the change, while others still retain the spelling "Megie".

(* - An error in reading the figures. The will was drawn in 1733. IMB)

The reason for the alteration given to me by my father was that the name so spelled more nearly resembled the original Scotch name. While this was true it was, in my judgment, unfortunate that the Scotch spelling was not adopted in whole or in part. The spelling "Magie" or "Megie" does not indicate the true pronunciation of the family name to any one not familiar with it. The spelling "M'Ghie" or "MacGhie" would indicate to a stranger the correct pronunciation.

"(I am led to believe that this statement is erroneous. In the churchyard of the Old First Church are a number of tombstones marking the burial places of several branches of the family and upon them the name is spelled with an "a". If they were erected previous to the time above mentioned it would seem that all the branches of the family had not adopted the spelling of the first John Megie). (WJM)

"How or why did John MacGhie leave Scotland and become John Megie of New Jersey?

"The answer to this question must be sought from the tradition in the family, which is, however, corroborated by historical facts as to justify the conviction that it is in all respects substantially true. The tradition is common in all branches of the family and may be briefly expressed as follows:- that John MacGhie was arrested in Scotland, charged with having said "Thank God" when he heard of the murder of Archbishop Sharp; that he was imprisoned and detained for a long time; that he was then banished to New Jersey; that he and others also banished to the same place were placed on board a ship and suffered great hardships in the passage to America; that after a long voyage during which many of the crew and passengers, and banished persons died, the ship arrived at Perth Amboy; that the ship afterwards proved to be unseaworthy and was abandoned in the Port of Perth Amboy.

"The Archbishop of St. Andrews, James Sharp, was murdered on the third day of May, 1679. As John MacGhie, according to the inscription on his tombstone was seventy-six years old at the time of his death in seventeen hundred and thirty-five, he was only about twenty years old in sixteen hundred and seventy nine. To enable us to understand how one in no way connected with the act of killing the Archbishop and who was only accused of having expressed a sense of gratitude for the event could be imprisoned and afterward banished from his native land, it seems necessary to make some brief reference to the then situation of Scotland and its ecclesiastical affairs. After the restoration of Charles the Second to the throne of Great Britain, he sought to impose upon the Church of Scotland an Episcopal form of Church government, notwithstanding his having sworn to uphold the Covenant and the Presbyterian form to which the majority of the Scotch people were devotedly attached. Without going into details it will be sufficient to say that in the prosecution of this design, the advisers and supporters of the King did many acts that were grossly oppressive and highly resented by the people. The Rev. James Sharp was a Presbyterian minister in apparent submission to the Presbyterian Church of Scotland and its judicatories. He was considered so devoted to the interests of that Church that he had been selected to treat with Cromwell during the period of the Commonwealth. Afterward when the restoration of Charles was imminent, he was sent to London as the representative of the Scotch Clergy, to watch the progress of events and to preserve the liberty of the Scotch Church.

"History makes it clear that during many years, Sharp occupied a position of confidence, trusted by his fellow clergymen and presumed to have been acting in the interests of the Presbyterian Church of Scotland. Afterward he accepted Episcopal Ordination and was then appointed by the King Archbishop of St. Andrews. This was naturally deemed to be an act of treachery which caused him to be despised by those whose trust he had violated and by the people generally. When he accepted thereafter a seat in the King's Council for Scotland and took part in the severe punishments inflicted upon those who had refused to conform, and when in some particular cases, detailed by Scotch historians, he displayed much cruelty and vindictiveness toward those with whom he had formerly acted, it was natural that the whole of the Scotch people, who were devoted to their Kirk, came to regard him as a cruel persecutor.

"The national sentiment of animosity is clearly discoverable in the circumstance of his death. Those persons who put him to death comprised several men of property and position. They had not met with a design of putting to death the man whom they doubtless deemed the enemy of their Church, but for another purpose. Their determination to attack him seems to have been formed when they accidentally discovered that he was proceeding to St. Andrews and would pass near where they were. The Archbishop was travelling in his coach, accompanied by his daughter. He was attacked and dragged from the coach and dispatched in her presence. No justification for this barbarous act can be pleaded, but in judging those who committed it, it must be remembered that Sharp had not only abandoned the National Church but had sat in the Privy Council when the horrible torture of the boots and thumb screws had been inflicted upon peasants, lairds, and learned and pious divines, and in one case it was believed upon apparently good authority, had withheld a despatch from the King which would have saved the life of a condemned prisoner, until after his execution.

"The killing of the Archbishop increased the animosity existing between the partisans of the King, who supported his efforts to impose a new form of Church government upon the Church of Scotland, and those who resisted the efforts.

"For many years the Presbyterians had stood by and supported the Church of their fathers, at the cost of much suffering. They had been barbarously tortured and many of their most distinguished men had been put to death for no other crime than worshipping God according to their ancient customs. When the death of the Archbishop became known, there was some of this party who denounced it as a crime. There were others who openly approved the deed as an act of justice done upon one who had occasioned so much suffering and the loss of so many lives. A careful examination of the Histories of those troublous times will, I think, justify the conclusion that the great mass of the Presbyterian party, while not approving the act, were sincerely gratified that one whom they regarded as a renegade to his faith and a traitor to his trust had been removed from life and was no longer able to do them injury. It was this condition of mind that was probably indicated by the expression of thankfulness of John MacGhie when he heard of the murder.

"The news of the murder of the Archbishop stirred the party in power to the most vigorous efforts to apprehend and punish those who were concerned in it. The Privy Council issued a proclamation denouncing it in the most rigorous terms and calling upon all persons to seize those charged with the murder and denouncing all who should aid their escape or conceal them from discovery. The soldiers, dispersed through the disaffected parts of Scotland had been previously empowered to question all persons whom they deemed suspicious as to their relations to the Government and the laws respecting the new Church establishment. It is plain that they did this in many instances with great cruelty and oppression, as was natural when such extensive powers were conferred upon common soldiers. But their authority was now extended to inquiries respecting the death of the Archbishop. Such inquiries naturally took the form of questions as to the opinion of the suspected person upon the manner of his death. It appears that even the Privy Council, when accused persons were before them, not infrequently required them to answer whether the act of killing the Archbishop were murder or not, and that would naturally be the line of examination of a common soldier. Sir Walter Scot, in "Old Mortality" probably expressed what naturally occurred when he makes Sergeant Bothwell declare to Henry Morton that his cockade and his broadsword were his commission to examine him on the subject and to ask his opinion of the death, declaring the examination to be "a new touchstone we have got for trying people's mettle". From this description it is evident that if John MacGhie, when questioned as to the killing, expressed his thankfulness according to the tradition, he was immediately arrested and imprisoned. It may be that his expression, made when he first heard of the murder, was afterward disclosed by some one who had overheard it, to some of the soldiery, and thereupon he would have been arrested and incarcerated. For while it is true that the language attributed to him by the tradition did not necessarily express approval of the act, it would have doubtless been accepted in that sense.

"It is a singular circumstance that with all the power of the Government and the animosity felt against those who slew the Archbishop, only one of these was ever judically punished and he was one, who although present, refused to take part with the others upon the rather singular excuse that as he had received personal injuries from the Archbishop, he would not lift his hand against him, lest it should be considered that he was satisfying a personal revenge.

"From what has been said, it is plain that if John MacGhie used the language indicated and it became known, he was confined in prison as we find him to be in 1685. What the prisons in those days were can hardly be conceived. The description by Bishop Burnett in his History of his own times, of the prison at Dunnotter, challenges credulity, but is so supported by descriptions of other historians as to compel belief. If the arrest of John MacGhie occurred shortly after the murder of the Archbishop, he must have remained in prison from 1679 to 1685. This, however, would not have been unusual. The Historians show that many who were imprisoned upon suspicion were detained a long time without trial. But as above suggested it may be that his remark, overheard about the time of the Archbishop's death, came to the knowledge of the authorities at a subsequent date and so that his imprisonment did not last so long; but as we shall see, he was in prison in 1685

"A brief account of the man who caused John MacGhie to embark for New Jersey will not be out of place.

"George Scot, Laird of Pitlochie, in 1674 was fined a thousand pounds for "keeping conventicles" and also five hundred merks more for impertinent behavior in Council. In 1677 he was sent to the Bass Prison. In the same year his wife was fined a thousand merks for "being at conventicles". In 1684 he apparently had again been committed to the Bass Prison for in December of that year he was let out of the Bass upon his promise to go to the plantations. When he made this promise he had undoubtedly determined to expatriate himself to some region where he would not be treated as a criminal for religious convictions. It is evident that he determined to come to New Jersey. In the early part of 1685, he published in Edinboro, a pamphlet under this extraordinary title: "The model of the Government of the Province of East New Jersey in America, and Encouragements for Such as Designs to be concerned there". As reprinted in the book published by the New Jersey Historical Society called "East Jersey under the Proprietors", it occupies about a hundred pages. It opens with an address to the Earl of Perth, the Lord High Chancellor, John, Viscount of Melford, Secretary of State for Scotland, and George, Viscount of Tarbet, the Registrar of Scotland, all members of the King's Privy Council. In this document he declares that he had resolved to dedicate himself, his family and fortune to the enterprise which those to whom he addressed this pamphlet has determined on in East Jersey. Singularly enough he opens his paper by a discussion of how America came to be inhabited after the Flood. He, of course, starts out with the notion that the Flood was universal and that all mankind were descended from Noah. His discussion of the subject leads him to review many Ancient Histories and to cite the arguments of many learned men. It would indicate that he was a man of intelligence and education. He then proceeds to argue the propriety of establishing colonies to replenish the Earth, to extend the bounds of civilisation and the Christian Religion, and to benefit the Mother Country thereby. After occupying nearly half the paper with such disquisitions, he touches upon the dissensions in Scotland upon matters of opinion respecting Church Government and concludes that the only relief from the intolerable condition in which those who could not conscientiously comply with the laws respecting Episcopacy found themselves, was to retreat to the place where toleration was permitted by the King, and that the fittest place discovered by him was East Jersey. He then describes the location, the title which has been granted by the King to his brother, the Duke of York, and from the latter to the Lords Proprietors of New Jersey. Those to whom he addressed his pamphlet were proprietors. He sets forth the attractions of the Colony by reason of its fertile soil, its healthful air and the facilities for acquiring land. He copied so much of the Concessions of Lord Berkley and Sir George Carteret, the original grantees from the Duke of York, as provided for liberty of conscience for all settlers. He describes the various settled towns then existing, and inserts a great number of letters from persons who had emigrated to New Jersey giving an account of all its advantages. He ends this part of his pamphlet by declaring again his purpose to emigrate and expressing a hope that others would accompany him. As a sort of post-script he adds copies of other letters from East Jersey.

"There is then added an advertisement to the effect that Mr. George Scot of Pitlochie had procured a pass from the Earl of Perth, still Lord Chancellor, permitting Scot and such other persons as he shall engage to pass from Scotland to any of the King's Foreign Plantations and that the Privy Council had decreed that persons under bond to appear before them, when called, should "have up" their bonds upon going with him. He then gives notice that the "Henry and Francis" of Newcastle, a ship of 350 tons and twenty great guns, Richard Hutton, Master, was "freighted" for the transportation of these families, and would sail for New Jersey on the 2th day of July 1685 and that those who desired to go with him could apply for passage to a number of persons in different parts of Scotland.

"It is obvious that the advertisement did not induce a sufficient number to take passage, for on the 10th of March 1685 the Privy Council gave a warrant to Pitlochie, to go to the Prisons of Edinboro, Glasgow and Stirling and transport a hundred of the prisoners who would be willing to go to the plantations. This did not seem to be successful in filling up the ship, for on the 17th day of August of the same year, after the date originally fixed for sailing, a session of the Privy Council was held in Leith, the Port of Edinburgh, when seventy-two prisoners were banished to the plantations. They seem to have been prisoners at Dunnotter. Crookshank, in his History, declared that most of those thus ordered to be transported were "made a present of" to the Laird of Pitlochie, who had freighted a Newcastle ship, Richard Hutton, Master, bound for New Jersey".

"The action of the Privy Council of Scotland appears in their Registry by what is called in Scotch Law, a Decreet. A copy of that document is now before me. It thereby appears that on the eighteenth day of August 1685, the Privy Council met at Leith. It was composed of the Marquis of Athol, who was elected President, the various Earls, Viscounts, and Lords, and General Dalzell. It recites that seventy-two persons (one of whom was John MacGhie) then prisoners in the Tolbooth of Leith, brought before the Council at the instance of the King's advocate for several crimes and irregularities, refusing the oath of allegiance or to own the King's authority or take the oath of abjuration, and all said persons who were men having in the presence of the Council refused to take or sign the oath of allegiance, and all who were women having altogether refused to take the oath of abjuration, the Council banished them to the Plantations abroad and forbade them ever to return without the King's or the Council's special license "on pain of death without mercy". The Council further ordained that all those persons and twenty three others named who had formerly been sentenced to the plantations and were then prisoners in the Tolbooth of Leith (one of whom was named Jean McGhie) should be delivered to Mr. George Scot of Pitlochie to be by him transported to the Plantations in East New Jersey in the ship then lying in the Road of Leith. The Decreet then proceeds to consider other cases, discharging some who took the oath of allegiance under their giving bond to appear before the Council when called for, and in the meantime live regularly and orderly. As an indication of the severity of the times, the Decreet ends as follows: "and in regard to Janet Fumerton flatly and boldly in the face of Council, denied the King to be lawful Sovereigne and his authority the said Lords ordaines her to be processed before the justices for her life".

"The Jean McGhie named in the Decreet is said by Wodrow to have been stopped on the twentieth day of August, by which, I suppose, is intended that she was retained in Scotland.

"It appears by the Histories heretofore cited that on the twenty-third of August 1685, twenty-eight of the prisoners signed a protest against their sentence of banishment. They declared therein that their sentence was founded upon their refusal to take the oath of allegiance to the King, "a man who is a sworn enemy to religion, an avowed papist". As King Charles the II, an avowed Protestant, had died on the 6th of the previous February, the reference is to James the II who was known to be a Roman Catholic.

"Among the twenty-eight signers appears the name of John MacGhie, or M'Ghie. This was undoubtedly the same person whose name was spelt McGhie in the Decreet.

"It is significant that both Woodrow and Crookshank who must have had the Decreet before them agree in inserting a "h" in his name, though Woodrow changes the Mac into M'.

"What occurred during the voyage is learned from the same Histories, their narration being based upon the statements of some of the banished who returned to their native country at what historians call the "happy revolution".

"From these sources it appears that although the Council had sat on the eighteenth day of August, the ship in which the banished prisoners were did not sail from Leith until the 5th of September 1685. After Land's End was passed, a fever broke out, especially among those who had been in the prison at Dunnotter and in a month's time became so malignant that few in the ship escaped; most of the crew and many of the prisoners died. Among those who died were Pitlochrie and his wife. A daughter of his survived. She had then been married or was subsequently married to John Johnstone, who had been a druggist in Edinboro, to whom Scot had referred persons desirous of accompanying him to New Jersey, and who was undoubtedly upon the vessel. The provisions became very bad, and probably because the crew was short handed, the voyage was very protracted, as the vessel did not reach Perth Amboy, which was its destination, until December 1685. The condition of the prisoners can only be imagined. They probably were without money and most of them had been through the violent fever which had taken away so many of those who left Scotland with them. They were, or conceived themselves to be, harshly treated by the inhabitants of Perth Amboy. There was, however, "a town a little way up the country" where a minister was settled. This town must have been Woodbridge. There was no minister settled at that time either at Newark or Elizabethtown. That Woodbridge was the town referred to seems clear, from the fact that the Rev. Archibald Riddel, who was one of the banished prisoners subsequently preached there until he returned to Scotland. The inhabitants of the town, upon learning of the arrival of the banished prisoners, invited all who were able to travel to come and live among them. They sent horses for those who were unable to travel, and entertained the prisoners for that winter freely and with kindness. In the following year, Scotch historians declare, Mr. Johnstone claimed the banished prisoners as his property and had them summoned into a Court of the Province, in which the Governor is said to have sat and called a jury who acquitted the prisoners. I am inclined to believe, however, that those who returned to Scotland and gave this information were mistaken in respect to what did occur. No trace has been found of any proceedings by Johnstone who had in fact become the administrator of his father-in-law and entitled to enforce any contract that had been made with Pitlochie. Johnstone for the estate of his father-in-law might have enforced against any one that crossed in the ship a contract to serve for a period in the Plantations as compensation for the passage money, but it is impossible to perceive any indication of a contract with men who came against their will and under solemn protest. The fact, I think, is that the informants misunderstood the proceedings. There were actions brought in the Court of Common Right by Hutton, the Master of the ship, in the spring of 1686. These actions were in debt for the price of a passage in the Henry & Francis. In several of the actions there was a finding in favor of the plaintiff in each case for five pounds sterling with costs. Afterward the Court fixed a day in the succeeding June for the trial of other actions brought by Hutton, and directed that a jury should be summoned for Perth Amboy. On the day fixed the cases appear to have been called and the defendants were discharged from imprisonment because Hutton did not appear. It thus seems that Hutton asserted a right to recover the passage money for those whom he had brought over, and under the law of the Province he was entitled to arrest any Defendant in such action. It is difficult to perceive any ground to support such an action unless the passengers had contracted to pay passage money. No implied contract would arise to pay for a passage against prisoners who were embarked and transported against their will.

"These historical facts which may undoubtedly be relied upon, justify in my judgment the assertion previously made that the family tradition may be accepted as true in every substantial respect. The tradition must have been founded upon statements made by John Megie to his children and grandchildren who had all come to years of discretion during his lifetime. It is wholly incredible that he fabricated statements that so closely fitted the facts stated in histories published long after.

"In respect to one feature of the tradition there is some confusion. It was undoubtedly supposed to declare that the ship on which John MacGhie came to New Jersey (the Henry and Francis) never left the port of Perth Amboy, but was declared to be unseaworthy and left to decay in the harbor. My father frequently told me that he had seen timbers which appeared at low water in the harbor of Perth Amboy and he believed them to be the timbers of the Henry and Francis. But no account of the abandonment of the Henry and Francis has been discovered. It is unlikely that such an event would have failed to have been noticed in letters or public documents of the Province. No such notice has been discovered. There was, however, a ship which within a few years after 1715 broke from its moorings in the harbor of Perth Amboy and was there abandoned. The timbers of that ship were for a long time visible. Mr. Whitehead in his history of Perth Amboy, declares that the ship had been used in voyages between Scotland and New Jersey and had brought over many Scotchmen who had immigrated to America after the rising of 1715. That ship, however, was named the Caledonia. The difficulty thus suggested would be entirely removed if it could be discovered that the Henry and Francis which was a ship of Newcastle, and had been chartered by George Scot of Pitlochie, after his disastrous voyage, continued to make voyages between Scotland and New Jersey and had been re-named by its owner Caledonia, because employed in that trade. While I have been unable to discover any proof of such change of name, it would not be unlikely to have occurred. The only error in the tradition would then be in the inference drawn that the ship on which John Megie came never left the harbor.

"In 1699 John Megie was admitted as an Associate of Elizabethtown with a "first lot right".

"The Associates of Elizabethtown were those who claimed ownership to a tract of land which was conveyed to John Baily, Daniel Denton and Luke Watson and their associates by an Indian Chief. The deed was dated the 28th day of October, 1664, and conveyed a tract, bounded on the south by the Raritan River, on the east by the river "which parts Staten Island and the Main" and then running northward on "After Cull Bay" to the first river, setting westward therefrom and then to run west into the country twice the length of its breadth from north to south. The breadth of this tract is about seventeen miles and its length therefore would be about thirty-four miles. It covered all Union county with portions of Middlesex, Somerset and Morris. The grantees in this deed associated with themselves a number of others and commenced the settlement of the tract and laid the foundation of the town, afterward called Elizabethtown. By the terms of their association, no one was permitted to obtain any interest in the Tract unless they were formally admitted by the vote of the existing Associates. This regulation was so carefully observed that much trouble ensued when the Associates discovered that Gov. Philip Carteret had purchased a tract from some one who was an Associate without having been admitted himself as an Associate. The difficulty seems to have been obviated by admitting the Governor as an Associate. The Governor's act in taking title under his admission was doubtless relied upon by those who claimed under the Indian grant in opposition to the Lords Proprietors and those claiming under them.

"The original Associates and those afterwards admitted were arranged in three classes, according to the amount contributed by each. Those who had a first lot right were entitled to one share in any division of the tract afterwards made; those who had a second lot right were entitled to two shares, and those who had a third lot right were entitled to three shares in such divisions. At the original settlement the town was divided into smaller lots and they were allotted to the then existing Associates. Afterward, surveys were made from time to time of the outlying lands, and divisions were made among the Associates according to the terms of the Association. It is evident that the Associates kept records of all their transactions. If those records were in existence, we should no doubt be able to ascertain the orderly course of proceeding, in dividing the town lands from time to time, but in 1720 the book or books then existing disappeared. This was at the time when the contest between the Proprietors and the Associates was at its height. The Associates accused the Proprietors of having stolen the book from their clerk who was Samuel Whitehead. The Proprietors accused the Associates of having destroyed their own books, although there appears no reason whatever why they should have been willing to divest themselves of valuable evidence in the existing dispute. In reading the accounts, it seems impossible to avoid the suspicion that the disappearance of the books was not because they were stolen from the house of the clerk, but that they were obtained from him in some way and at least never returned.

"What is known about the admission of John Megie as an Associate in 1699 is learned from a book made up by the Associates in November 1729. Dr. Hatfield in his history, has assumed that the record which had disappeared was contained in a single book which he calls Book A. The book that was opened in 1729 he calls Book B. I think he was in error in assuming that only a single book disappeared, for I am credibly informed that there are surveys existing endorsed as recorded in Book B before the book called by him Book B came into existence.

"The Book of November 1729 opens with a long document drawn with skill, and care, signed by one hundred and eleven of the Associates and among others by John Megie. It recited the fact of the previous record having been "craftily and maliciously stole" and (as there was no small reason to believe) "were burned or otherwise destroyed". It further states that the original surveys are still in existence and provides a mode in which they may be brought in, and upon due consideration might be admitted to record in the Book just opened. It thereby appears that by the division of 1699, John Megie had acquired a tract of one hundred acres which is described in his will as being at Scotch Plains.

"It is not improper at this period of my narration to recall the origin and nature of the contest between the Lords Proprietors and the Associates of Elizabethtown.

"King Charles the Second, after his restoration, claiming that he was entitled to grant both the soil and dominion of all parts of North America, at least north of the Spanish Possessions, granted to his brother James, Duke of York, various tracts among which was one extending from the Connecticut River to Delaware Bay. This grant was made on March the 12th, 1664. On the 12th day of April of the same year, the Duke of York appointed Richard Nicholls, Esq. a Deputy Governor within all the lands granted by the King to him. Nicholls came to New York, probably soon after his appointment and then published certain terms by which persons could acquire property in the lands within the Provinces of New York and New Jersey. On the 26th of September there was presented to Governor Nicholls a petition from Six persons, three of them being John Balies, Daniel Denton and Luke Watson who were the grantees in the Indian Deed. They thereby sought liberty to purchase and settle a plantation on the river called After Cull Bay. On September the 30th, Governor Nicholls consented to the proposals and declared he would give the undertakers all due encouragement in so good a work. By a Grant dated December the 1st, 1664, Governor Nicholls confirmed the Indian Deed to John Baker, John Ogden, John Baily, and Luke Watson. Baker and Ogden thus appear to take the place of Daniel Denton. There was a provision in the Grant that the Grantees were to take care that people be carried there for settlement of plantations thereon, and "that none have liberty to do without the consent and approbation of their Associates". It was under this authority and these Grants that the grantees associated with themselves many others who came and settled at Elizabethtown and so built up the place that it soon became the most considerable place in New Jersey.

"The claim of the Lords Proprietors originated in a Grant made by the Duke of York to John, Lord Berkley and Sir George Carteret. A tract of land bounded on the east, part by the Main Sea and part by Hudson's River and upon the West by Delaware Bay or River, extending south to Cape May and north to the northmost branch of the Delaware, forty-one degrees and forty minutes of latitude and crossing over in a straight line to Hudson River in forty-one degrees, which tract was to be called Nova Caeserea or New Jersey.

"It was under this grant which was dated June the 4th, 1664, that Berkley and Carteret and those who afterwards became the Lords Proprietors claimed the whole soil and Government of New Jersey.

"In the circumstances above narrated it is obvious that there were ample materials for litigation. There was a question as to the extent of the power conferred on Col. Nichols by the Duke of York and whether he had authority to permit the acquisition of the Indian title and to approve it by a deed to the grantees. There was another question as to whether the title acquired by Berkley and Carteret in June 1664 was superior to the title acquired under the Indian Grant and the confirmation of it by Col. Nichols at a later date. At first it does not seem that these questions were taken into consideration, for Philip Carteret, the Governor and agent of the Proprietors, became an Associate and thereby recognized some authority and ownership in the associates. On December the 11th, 1672, Berkley and Carteret wrote to the Representatives of Elizabethtown, Newark, and Piscataway, in which they admit receiving a petition from them in respect to certain grievances and complaints, and offering to do justice to them though charging them with having been unjust to the writers. This letter appears in Leaming and Spicer, page forty. The Associates apparently convinced of their claim to the land granted by the Indians, confirmed by Col. Nichols, went into possession of their tract, developed it and built up a town with a church and a town government, and they retained the possession against all threats on the part of the Proprietors. After many years actions began to be brought by those who had acquired title from the Proprietors against some who had rights under the Associates. It would seem that actions generally resulted in favor of the Proprietors. This may have been because the Courts deemed the right of the Proprietors superior to that of the Associates. But it was not unnatural that the Associates, knowing that the judges were appointed by the Proprietors or by their agent, the Governor, and that the jurymen were often men who held title under the Proprietors, thought that they were oppressed by the situation. At some time a number of the Associates united in a petition to the King, which will be found in the last pages of Leaming and Spicer. It is not dated, but as it refers to their peaceable possession for nearly thirty years after the Indian Grant and recites an action of ejectment begun in the year 1693, a judgment therein for the Proprietors and a reversal of that judgment when brought by appeal before the King in Council, it must have been written after 1693, and probably nearer 1700. It sets forth the grievances of the Associates and complains of the unfairness of having their causes tried before the Judges of their opponents' creation.

"I do not propose to express any opinion upon the legal questions that must have been presented in Court in the cases in respect to which the petitioners to the King complained. My only purpose is to indicate the position of John Megie in respect to the contest. As has been stated he became an Associate in 1699. He joined in the petition to the King just above described. As year after year passed the claims of the Associates grew in strength by reason of their continued possession and the Proprietors made great efforts to induce the associates to accept a title from them for the lands which they had obtained title to from the Association. At last they issued a proclamation declaring their willingness to make such grant to any Associate and that if the offer was not accepted and grants were not applied for by a certain date, actions for ejectment would be brought. This induced a large number of the Associates to apply to the Proprietors for surveys and locations of their lands. A list of them will be found in Dr. Hatfield's History, page 182, but John Megie's name is not among them. The one hundred acre lot laid out to him in the division of 1699 he conveyed to John Crane, presumably his son-in-law, and after his death there was a contest before the Commission of the Associates between Crane and persons claiming under a survey to Philip Carteret, and the Committee adjudged that the Megie survey had been improperly laid upon lands covered by the previous survey to Carteret. It is evident that he still adhered to the Associates' title for by his will he devised to his sons not only a hundred acre lot at Scotch Plains which had been conveyed to him by Daniel Little, which Little had obtained in the division of 1699, but also his rights as an Associate.

"To complete this sketch of the legal contest over the titles in Elizabethtown, it is proper to add that on _____, the Proprietors filed the Elizabethtown Bill in Chancery. To this, the Associates who were parties filed an Answer. The purpose of the parties plainly was to have the matter finally settled by an adjudication in the Court of Chancery. The Chancellor was the Governor, then appointed by the King, because the Proprietors had resigned to the Crown the right of Government. This answer must have been filed after the death of John Megie, but his two sons John and Joseph were parties thereto and signed the document as such. It seems obvious that they also adhered to the claims of the Associates. The opportunity to settle the question presented by the issue upon the Bill and Answer, was not seized upon. No steps were taken to bring the cause to final hearing and in the excitement and confusion of the Revolution the whole matter passed from the public mind and to this day many of the titles to land within the Elizabeth Grant depend upon the divisions of the Associates supplemented by two hundred years of adverse possession. Since the decision of our Courts that a title by adverse possession would bar the right of the Proprietors, the question has been removed from doubt.

"Where John Megie passed the time or what he was engaged in between his landing at Perth Amboy and his admission as an Associate of Elizabethtown in 1699 has not been discovered. As he was only twenty years old at the time of the murder of the Archbishop Sharp, if he was then or shortly after imprisoned, and kept in confinement until his banishment in 1685, he evidently had not had the opportunity to acquire a profession or trade. In all probability he landed without means and had to be indebted to the kindness of the good people of Woodbridge for support, at least during the first winter. It is known that he became a blacksmith, a trade that in the infancy of the settlement was much needed and fairly remunerative. He practised that trade doubtless so long as he was able, and in his will made in 1733 he calls himself a blacksmith.

"He became a member of the Church in Elizabethtown which afterward became the First Presbyterian Church and no doubt worshipped in the edifice built by that church, which stood on the site of the present church. It appears from the old ledger of Dr. Harriman that he contributed to his salary. He was buried in the churchyard of that church and his tombstone is still in existence, from which it appears that he died in 1735, in the seventy-sixth year of his age.

"It seems probable that he came to Elizabeth prior to the year 1699 and that he practised his trade there. While he could not have bought land in Elizabeth prior to his admission as an Associate, he might have rented land. It is not likely that he would have been admitted as an Associate if he had not lived in Elizabeth and his character been ascertained by the Associates who took part in his admission.

"It is evident that by his industry he became a man of substance for those days. He acquired title to several tracts in the town besides the hundred acres that were allotted to him in the division of 1699. From whom he acquired them has not been discovered. There were no County records of conveyances at that time and the records of the Associates in their earliest books disappeared, as has been stated. One of the tracts, containing about nine acres was situated on the west side of a road which is now called Chilton Street and on the south side of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. The other tracts were some upon a road called afterward and perhaps earlier the Magie Road, and some were Salt Meadow. One of the tracts was called the Middle Field and one was called the Ridge Farm. When he came to make his will he devised the Ridge Farm to his son John. He devised his Homestead to his son Joseph. There is some uncertainty where the Homestead was located. Some of the family think that it was upon the Magie Road at or near where it was crossed by a road from Trotter's Mill to the Road to Westfield. I feel quite clear that the Homestead was not upon that place but was upon the tract above described lying on Chilton Street. That information was given me by my father, and old people have told me that on that tract, west of the location of the present house there used to be an old well and the remains of an old foundation. When John Magie left the Ridge Farm to his son John, it seems plain that the farm must have been at the west end of the Magie Road and at or adjoining a cross road extending from the Galloping Hill Road to what is now Morris Avenue. The elevation is not great, but it is the sole spot within his ownership that could be called a ridge. The Middle Field was divided between his sons and probably the son Joseph established a homestead there on his part, after he had sold the Chilton Street tract in 1777 to Jonathan Hampton, who afterward in 1788 sold it to John Hunt. It is not very material where the Homestead was. But after the conveyance of the Chilton Street Tract, the descendants of the original John Magie continued to own and reside upon the land on the Magie Road. At my earliest recollection every farm upon the road, except two, was owned and lived on by a descendent. Only one farm, is, at this day, owned and occupied by a Magie.

"John Megie married a woman whose Christian name was Anna. I have never been able to discover her surname. She died just four months after him. By her he had a number of children whom I shall hereafter describe.

"Before doing so I will suggest the reasons which may have influenced John Megie in adopting that mode of spelling his surname. One reason may have been a desire to escape if possible an unjust claim, either for his services or his passage money. Whether the claim was made by the representative of the estate of George Scot or by the master of the vessel that brought him over, it was a matter of serious import to a young man who was probably penniless and dependent upon his own exertions, to require him to labor for another, as was sometimes done, or to answer for his passage money, or be imprisoned for the debt. It would have probably broken his career. Therefore he may have possibly thought the change of his surname might conceal his identity.

"Another and to my mind more plausible reason, arises from these circumstances. When he was admitted as an Associate of Elizabethtown, in 1699, many others were admitted with him. Whoever kept the record of that date as it is written in the Book of Records now in the Princeton University Library adopted many ingenious ways of misspelling the names of the new Associates. It is not improbable that he wrote the name of John Megie from hearing the name pronounced and that circumstance escaped the notice of the newly admitted associate. If that conjecture is correct, he may have deemed it essential to the assertion of his title, to adopt the spelling that the record disclosed.

"This John Megie died Feb. 3rd, 1735, at the age of seventy-six years; his wife Anna died June the 3rd, 1735, at the age of sixty-one years. Both were buried in the Churchyard of the First Presbyterian Church of Elizabeth.

"John Megie by his wife Anna had six children: Janet, Abigail, Anna, Mary, John, and Joseph.

"Janet married Jonathan Woodruff,
Abigail married Samuel Woodruff,
Anna married John Crane,
Mary married Hinds.

"I have not been able to trace their descendents. The late Dean Winans informed me that Jonathan and Samuel Woodruff were brothers and sons of Joseph Woodruff, the son of John Woodruff (*) who came to Elizabethtown from Southampton, Long Island and settled in the neighborhood afterward called Westfield. This is corroborated by statements in the book called "The Woodruffs of New Jersey". It there appears that Joseph Woodruff of Westfield, by his will, recognized among his sons a Jonathan and a Samuel; that the gravestone of Jonathan's wife gives her name as "Jennet" and although Samuel's will speaks of his wife as Elizabeth, she may have been a second wife; and he had a daughter named Abigail. The husband of Mary, I conjecture was of the family who now spell their name "Haines". It was previously spelled variously as "Hains", "Hains", "Hines", or "Hinds".

"John, the older of the sons, was born in 1699 or 1700. He married Martha He died January 5th, 1741 in the 42nd year of his age, leaving no children. He acquired some prominence in the little community. In 1720 he and his father joined with the Freeholders of Elizabethtown in a power of attorney conferring authority upon a Committee of seven of their number to act in obtaining a settlement of their rights claimed under the grant of Governor Richard Nichols. In 1737 he was made a member of that committee. In 1740 he was a member of the Township Committee.

"He added to the property that he acquired under his father's will other property including a one-fourth share in a grist and saw mill. I have not been able to discover its location. The mill nearest his residence is marked on Meyer's Revolution Map as "Trotter's Mill" and is situated on the Elizabethtown River where crossed by a road now called North Avenue. The Mill-Pond covered substantially the present Upper Reservoir of the Elizabethtown Water Company.

"By his will made December 14th, 1740, he bequeathed to his wife some money and gave her the use of part of his homestead for life or widowhood, (she only survived him four months)*. He gave all his moveable property, after payment of debts, funeral expenses and legacies, to his sisters, Anna, Jennet (sic) and Abigail, and to Mary Hinds, the daughter of his sister Mary. He devised his homestead to his nephew John, son of his brother Joseph, to be enjoyed when he came of age, giving the use thereof in the meantime to his brother on condition that he should pay £20 to each of his sisters and the niece before mentioned. He directed that all the rest of his real estate should be sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of his debts; if a surplus remained it was to be equally divided between his sisters and niece.

"Joseph, the other son, and his descendents will be treated of in the following chapters.

(* Mr. Magie evidently had in mind Anna the wife of the first John, as no further record is found of Martha. She must have re-married and trace of her lost by the change of name. IMB.)

CHAPTER SECOND

"Joseph, the younger son of the first John Megie was born in the year 1706. He married Margaret Williams and died on the 9th day of March 1783

"He was doubtless born in his father's homestead, situated on what is now called Chilton Street. He acquired title to the Homestead by the devise of his father's will, on the death of his father in 1735. He probably continued to live in the Homestead until he sold it to Jonathan Hampton in 1775, and then removed to a house built by him on a part of the Middle Field which he acquired also by the same will. That house was still standing when I was a boy, and I have a vivid recollection of its appearance. It was upon the north side of the Magie Road facing south. It was a long, low building with an enormous stretch of roof which extended beyond the front wall of the house. There was no porch or piazza under it, but the ground was paved with flat stones. The front door was reached by a stone step. It was a colonial building, but not in the colonial style. I am inclined to think it was modeled after some Scotch design obtained from his father. Between the house and the Magie Road was a deep well with an immense sweep. A large barn and out-buildings stood upon the opposite side of the road. This house at my earliest recollection, was occupied by my uncle, Ogden Magie. It was torn down by him about 1860 and replaced by a more modern house.

"Joseph Magie, by his wife Margaret, had three sons and two daughters. In this chapter I purpose to follow the line of descent from him to myself and my family. In the following chapters I purpose to give all the information I have respecting his other descendents.

"His eldest son was John, who must have been born about 1732. He died on the 26th day of September 1781, in the forty-ninth year of his age. He married Phoebe Ogden, the daughter of John Ogden, who was the son of Jonathan Ogden, who was the son (*) of John Ogden, one of the grantees in the confirmatory deed of Governor Richard Nichols.

"John Magie, by his wife Phoebe, had six children, four sons and two daughters. One of his sons was Michael, born January 8th, 1757. At the outbreak of the Revolutionary War he was only nineteen years of age. It is probable that his brothers Ezekiel and John were enlisted in the Continental Army. The necessity of the family probably compelled Michael to remain at home. He enlisted, however, in a troop of Lighthorse, commanded by Captain Christopher Marsh, composed of men who were either too old or too young to go into the line. This troop was called out on active service whenever the British came over from Staten Island.

"The Battle of Springfield was fought on the 6th day of June 1780 and the troop took part in the engagement. The retreat of the main body of the British Army from Springfield was by the Galloping Hill Road. The American forces followed upon the same road.

"When they reached the junction of the road with the Westfield road, near the residence of General Crane, now occupied by David T. Magie, the troop, or a detail therefrom was sent down the Westfield Road to observe the movements of the British. Michael took part in that service. When they reached a point nearly opposite the station on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, now called Elmore, a party of Hessians concealed in or behind a barn on the south side of the road, which barn was standing upon lands occupied by Elihue Morton when my father pointed out to me the locality and told me the story, fired upon the troop and a bullet passed through the leg of Michael below the knee, breaking both bones. Unless woods were then intervening, he was in sight of his father's door and not half a mile therefrom. He did not seek refuge there, probably because he did not feel assured that the British army was in full retreat. He probably feared that if discovered and taken prisoner, he would be taken to New York and suffer the horrors of the Prison ships and the Sugar House, of which so many of the Elizabethtown patriots had knowledge. He therefore turned his horse and rode back to Springfield. When he arrived there he was examined by a surgeon on service and told that his leg must be amputated. The tradition in the family is that he drew his sabre and vowed that nobody should take off his leg. His family physician who had probably gone to Springfield to assist in the care of the wounded, was called in. After he examined him, he is reported to have said: "The young man is strong and healthy; let him try to save his leg." That course was pursued and the leg was saved, but he was a life-long cripple, unable to bend his knee*

"Notwithstanding his disability, he seems to have been a successful farmer. He lived in the house which his father had built on the Magie Road. He was twice married and by each wife had a numerous family. His first wife was Catherine Hinds, who I conjecture was one of the Haines family above mentioned. He died January the 25th, 1793. Thereafter he married Mary Meeker, who died September the 20th, 1829. Michael Magie died January the 6th, 1810.

"The eldest child of Michael Magie by his wife Mary Meeker, was born March 13th, 1795 in the house on the Magie road built by his grandfather, Joseph Magie. He was named David, after one of his uncles. At his father's death he was sixteen years old and was then left the eldest child at home.

"In 1813 he resolved to become a clergyman of the Presbyterian church. Notwithstanding the fact that his education up to that time had only been in the school kept in the Adelphian Academy which occupied the site of the present City Hall, his diligence was such that he entered the Junior class of the College of New Jersey in 1815 and was graduated with credit in 1817. He immediately prosecuted his studies in the Theological Seminary at Princeton. He was made a tutor of the College in 1818 and served as such until 1820. He was licensed to preach on April the 27th, 1820. On April the 24th, 1821 he was ordained and installed pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Eliza--

* This stirring story is borne out by the terse service record of Michael Magie, as furnished by the Adjutant General of New Jersey: "Michael Magie was a Private, Captain Christopher Marsh's Troop of Light Horse, Essex County, New Jersey Militia, 1777; was in engagement at Elizabethtown, New Jersey, September 12, 1777, where he was wounded, - during the Revolutionary War".

Note the discrepancy in the date as told by the Rev. David Magie and the date given in the Adjutant General's record, in the later paragraph, which in the William Jay Magie MS is marked by a question mark. The latter date, is of course the correct official one.

bethtown. He remained their pastor for nearly forty-five years and until his death on May 10th, 1865.

"He was a trustee of the College of New Jersey, now Princeton University from 1835 until his death. He was a director of the Theological Seminary from 1861 until his death. He was also for a long time one of the Publishing Committee of the American Tract Society. In 1842 Amherst College conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity. He married Anne Frances Wilson on May 7th, 1821. They had ten children:

Jane Dunwoody, b. Feb. the 6th; 1822. d. Oct. 3rd, 1825.
 James Wilson, b. Feb. 2nd, 1825; d. July 31st, 1825.
 John Maclean, b. June 19th, 1826; d. Oct. 6th, 1826.
 Henry Martyn, b. Jan. 24th, 1828; d. Aug. 4th, 1843.
 David Brainerd, b. Aug. 10th, 1830; d. Sept. 3rd, 1831.
 William Jay, b. Dec. 9th, 1832.
 Mary Hait, b. Nov. 30th, 1834; d. July 8th, 1887.
 David, b. May 23, 1837, d. Oct. 3rd, 1910.
 Anna, b. Dec. 29th, 1841; m. Lewis W. Oakley.
 James Henry, b. Nov. 1st, 1845; d. March 5th, 1846.

"William Jay married Sarah Frances, daughter of Jediah J. and Abbie Baldwin, on October the 1st, 1857. She died February the 14th, 1874. Their children were:

William Francis, b. Dec. 14, 1858.
 Henrietta Oakley, b. Nov. 21st, 1860.
 Henry Haines, b. Dec. 11th, 1862; d. Oct. 17th, 1863.

"David married Eliza Ralston Brandt. They had three children:-

David, b. July 31st, 1861.
 William Brandt, b. March 13th, 1869; d. July 15th, 1869.
 John MacLean, b. Aug. 15th, 1870.

"Anna married Lewis W. Oakley. They had two children:-

Sarah Davis, b. Oct. 21st.
 Anne Elston, b. Oct. 21st.

RELATIONSHIP.

Propositus:- The person whose relation is sought to be ascertained or shown by a genealogical table.

CONSANGUINITY:— the degrees of lineal consanguinity are reckoned as one degree for each person in the line of descent, exclusive of him for whom the computation begins. This is so at the Civil, the Canon and the Common law. At the Civil law, the degree of consanguinity between collaterals is reckoned by proceeding from a person up to the common ancestor and down to the one whose relationship is sought. At the Common and Canon law, the degrees between collaterals are found by taking the number from the common ancestor to either, or the more remote of them.

In the annexed diagram the Roman numerals express the degrees by the Civil law; the Arabic those by the Canon and the Common law. Those in the vertical line are called lineal relations; those in the ascending line (the portion above the Propositus) being called ascendants; those in the descending line, (the portion below the Propositus) being called descendants.

COUSINS:— The children of one's uncle or aunt, called "own", "first", or "full" cousin; or Cousin German. The children of first cousins are Second Cousins to each other; the children of second cousins are Third Cousins to each other; and so on, one degree further for each generation. The child of one's first cousin is properly called "first cousin once removed";— the grandchild of one's first cousin, "first cousin twice removed", and so on.

THE MACGHIE (MEGIE) FAMILY IN AMERICA

The earliest member of the Magie family of whom reliable information exists was John MacGhie, who was born in 1659 and died in 1735. He was banished from Scotland, according to tradition, for the part he took in a religious controversy. Arriving at Perth Amboy, New Jersey, in 1685, he soon settled in Elizabethtown, where the family subsequently remained.

John Megie's will, drawn Apr. 23, 1733, proved Mar. 9, 1735, names sons John and Joseph, daughters Anna, wife of John Crane; Jannet, wife of Jonathan Woodruff, and Abigail, wife of Samuel Woodruff. Wife Anna is named executor with sons John and Joseph.

Daughter Mary was already dead, and her daughter Mary Hinds, while living, is not mentioned.

SECOND GENERATION

- 2 JOHN MEGIE, a blacksmith, son of John (1) and Anna Megie born 1699*, Elizabethtown, N. J. died Jan. 5, 1741, in 42nd yr. (1-#1227)

married:

MARTHA _____

No children.

John Megie's will names wife Martha and his three living sisters, and the daughter of the fourth, (Mary, deceased) and his nephew John, son of his brother Joseph. Widowed Martha probably remarried. No further record is found of her.

- 3 ANNA MEGIE, daughter of John (1) and Anna Megie born 1701*
 died Mar. 14, 1759, age 59, (W-#601)

married:

JOHN CRANE, son of John and Esther (Norris) Crane, and grandson of Stephen Crane who came to Elizabethtown in 1664.

Death dates with ages of John and Anna Megie Crane are shown on their tombstones. Since records of the Westfield Church are missing prior to 1759, baptism of the children was not found. John Crane's will dated Feb. 25, 1763, proved Sept. 19, 1763, gives his father's name as John and names these children and a nephew, John DeHart. He names his wife "Mary", so she must have been a second wife. Her grave is not found with his. It is likely she remarried.

Joseph Megie's will names wife Margaret, sons Benjamin and Joseph, and daughters Mary, Margaret, and Abigail, and grandson John, son of son John. Son John had predeceased him, as had son Jonathan and Jonathan's only child, Jonathan.

Mary Megie (18) was still living in 1781 when her father made his will. No further record of her has been discovered. Likely her name had been changed by marriage, and if so this was not mentioned in the will, and so trace of her is lost.

 Hannah or Jane	b.
	m. Robert Bond.

Margaret (Crane) Huntington was the aunt of Jasper Crane of Newark, N. J.

 Hannah is not mentioned in "Wheeler", but is mentioned in "Clayton's History of Union and Middlesex Counties", as having married Robert Bond, son of Jonathan Bond, and a brother of Jane Bond who married "Hannah's" brother, John Ogden. She died before 1672. The Osborne Genealogy gives her name as "Jane", and states she was a sister of John Ogden.

Richard Ogden, son of Richard Ogden of Chester, England, settled in Fairfield, Conn. in 1630. Among his other activities he was a stonemason. John Ogden, his brother, a native of Bradley Plains, Hampshire, England, came to New Haven and Stamford, Conn. in 1641. He also worked as a stonemason, and with his brother, Richard, built the church at Stamford in 1642.

John Ogden went to Hempstead, Long Island, in 1644; then to Northampton, L. I., in 1646; then to Southampton, L. I. in 1647. He was magistrate in 1656, and a member of the Upper House of the General Court 1660-61. In 1664 he went to Elizabethtown, N. J. as one of the original Patentees of the colony. He was King's Council in 1665 and acting Governor in 1673 during the period that the colony was under Dutch rule.

THE OGDEN FAMILY

JOHN OGDEN, the Pilgrim, son of Richard and Elizabeth (Huntington) Ogden.
 born Sept. 19, 1609, Bradley Plains, Hampshire, England.

Benjamin		b. 1654, America d. Nov. 20, 1722 m. Hannah Woodruff, dau. of John Woodruff the elder.

Samuel Plum was the son of John Plum of Dorchester, Mass.

Elizabeth Swain was the daughter of Capt. Samuel and Joanna (Ward) Swain.

Samuel Swain was the son of William Swain of London, and later of Boston.

The graves of John and Jane (Bond) Ogden are presumed to be under the present First Presbyterian Church at Elizabeth, N. J.

Sarah Ogden is said by Wheeler to have married John Woodruff, the elder; but other sources say that Sarah Ogden who married this John Woodruff was the daughter of John Ogden of Rye, N. Y., a cousin of John of Elizabethtown.

founders (of Southampton): his eldest son named John was adopted by his maternal grandfather and was the one who went to Elizabethtown, N. J. and was the ancestor of the families of that name in that state.

"John Woodruff Sr. had another son, also called John, who remained in Southampton, being a curious instance of a man's having two sons of the same name living at the same time".

(Early Long Island Wills: Pelletreau.)

"John Woodruff (1604-1670), Southampton, L. I. leaves to his eldest son John Woodruff, of Elizabethtown, New Jersey "a half-crown piece, in full of all portions and patrimony to be expected of me".

 died Aug. 30, 1802

child

d. July 18, 1786 (SR-1)

(Possibly others)

No records are found of Benjamin Megie Jr. or his family, except the reference to his having inventoried his father's estate; and the deaths of his wife and child, recorded in the Sexton's Book of the First Presbyterian Church, which does not give their names, but only as "wife of Benjamin Megie", and "child of Benjamin Magie".

293	John	b. July 10, 1815

Documentary proof of Joseph Megie's being the son of Benjamin and Rachel (Halsey) Megie is lacking; but the fact that the names of his children repeat the names of the brothers and sisters and the father of Rachel Halsey, as well as her own name of Rachel, indicate unquestionably the fact of this relationship.

Benjamin Magie (228), named for his grandfather Benjamin Hinds, went to Ohio in 1812. He settled in Butler County, 25 miles north of Cincinnati. Benjamin used to pilot wagon trains to Chicago, (and it is said, also between New Jersey and Ohio). He fought in the War of 1812 and was wounded in the battle of Lundy's Lane.

"Sarah Brown Magie revisited New Jersey in 1825. She had become homesick and decided she must see her relatives once more. She began the journey accompanied by Josiah, in an ordinary farm wagon. The road was through seemingly impenetrable forests, infested with wild beasts and wilder men. Money was very scarce, and the expenses of the trip had to be provided for. She knew that feathers were cheap and plentiful in Ohio, and scarce and dear in New York. Accordingly the wagon was filled with sacks of feathers which also served as a comfortable seat and bed. The feathers yielded a profit equal to the expense of the journey and everyone was happy. Returning to Ohio in the fall, the wagon was loaded with mahogany veneering, which was sold in Cincinnati at a good profit."

Josiah Brown Magie moved to Indiana in 1828, settling in Greenhill. He once went back to New Jersey by horseback to visit relatives, and brought home the first box of matches in his community, which he procured in Elizabeth City. He was elected one of the first county commissioners when Warren County was organized. He was a Major in the Black Hawk War, and piloted wagon trains to Chicago when the country was a wilderness.

Sarah Morrison Magie was a woman of more than ordinary size and of giant strength; not as tall as her sister Eunice, but never fleshy, she weighed 200 pounds. She could pick up a sack of wheat weighing 120 pounds and toss it into a wagon with ease. She could take a 3-year old steer by the nose and horn and hold him while her husband yoked it; and could yoke a couple of wild oxen and hitch to a sled as quick as anybody. Never was seen to get really mad, and was always of a sunny disposition. Sarah was a gad-about and visited among neighbors as much as 15 miles away, horseback, with a youngster on her lap and one behind. She was an herb doctor, well versed in the science of medicine, and was a ministering angel among the pioneers, many of whom were sorely afflicted with malaria. Much of her time was spent riding from house to house, ministering to suffering humanity without reward.

Josiah Magie was not a large man and not very strong; was sedate, even-tempered, and seldom laughed. Sarah laughed often, though none the less earnest. Their children said they were never seen to quarrel, and the children were never allowed to dispute among themselves. Josiah was very skillful at making of wood whatever he needed, as there was no iron nor things made of iron obtainable in the early years of his pioneering. He made wooden grain scoops for himself and others.

THE MORRISON FAMILY

The Morrison family originated in Scotland. James Morrison, father of Sarah, who married Josiah Magie, was Scotch-Irish. At the time Sarah was born, in 1804, the Morrisons were already of long residence in America.

JANE BAILEY (BAILEY ?) of Bernardstown.

The original Primrose farm was near New Vernon. In driving along Route 202 from Morristown to Bernardsville, a bridge crosses a small stream coming from New Vernon, which is marked "Primrose Brook".

Benjamin Hanes Magie ran away from home at a very early age, (13, according to the family), and "went to Texas". He appears to have been a rover and adventurer until he settled in Saline Co., Ark. and married and raised a family. He never returned to Ohio, although in later years he was in touch with the family there.

DAVID MEEKER MAGIE

Excerpt from a letter from the University of Arizona, Tucson, Ariz. Agricultural Experiment Station. Dated March 4, 1947.

"From the History of Poland-China Swine, by Joseph Roy Davis and Harvey S. Duncan. Volume I, page 5-6:

"Beginning at a time when the Shaker Society was at it's zenith, D. M. Magie began his work in the marketing and breeding of the Warren County Hog. He was born in the state of New Jersey in 1811, and two years later the family moved to Butler County, Ohio. With his father he became identified with the raising of livestock in 1837. Records show that the Magies as early as 1840 drove hundreds of hogs of their own breeding to the markets of Cincinnati.

"The superior quality of these animals attracted a great deal of attention among the leading stockmen, who purchased many for breeding purposes. This gave Magie the idea of disseminating the blood of his hogs; its working out brought to him the credit of being the greatest advertiser and shipper of his day. So successful was he in his advertising that the demand for his stock exceeded the output, so he would be seen driving around the country with a wagon picking up the better hogs in the community to help fill his orders. Many shipments were made to foreign countries.

"In later years Magie tried to establish his claim to being the originator of the Poland-China breed, but a committee appointed by the National Swine Breeders Convention reported in their meeting held in Indianapolis Indiana in 1872 that his claim was unfounded. Later when the recording associations were being formed, Magie held out against them and never would sanction the use of a pedigree. This action on his part led the records afterward to refuse to accept pedigrees of animals purchased from his herd.

"The name "Magie Hog" was used by many and D. M. Magie made a strenuous fight to sustain his claim as the originator of the breed."

(Trans cript furnished by Olive Magie Perkins.)

No children.

The Josiah Brown Magie bible spells the name "Megie" and all the children's births are entered with this spelling. However, the marriages are given with the names spelled "Magie". Obviously the entries after 1854 must have been made by his widow. But in the course of time the sons with the exception of John Morrison Magie adopted the spelling "Magee".

After the death of Benjamin Hanes Magie, Jefferson Davis Magie was taken by the Kumlers, (Theophilus and Laura) to Ohio, where he lived with and was raised by his father's brother, David Meeker Magie, of Oxford, Ohio. He remained with them about ten years. Being unsympathetic with the Confederate side of the Civil War, they did not care for the name "Jefferson Davis", so called the boy "David". Davis Magie returned to Arkansas when he was grown. When Laura Kumler died, she left a small legacy to both Jefferson Davis Magie and his brother John Wilson Magie.

"Dr. Magie was born Dec. 14, 1858 in Elizabeth, N. J.; son of the late William Jay Magie, former Chancellor and Sarah (Baldwin) Magie. After preparing at Pingrey School, he took his A.B. at Princeton in 1879, the class of which Woodrow Wilson was also a member. While in college he was a member of the original board of the Princetonian, and was valedictorian of his class; and secretary. He took his M.A. there in 1882. After his graduation from Princeton he served for attime as an assistant in the physica department, but later went to Europe where in 1885 he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the University of Berlin. Returning to Princeton he was made a full professor in 1890.

"The College of Wooster conferred an honorary L.L.D. on him in 1916, and his alma mater bestowed an honorary D.Sc. on him when he retired in 1929.

"Dr. Magie was a founder and former president of the American Physical Society, a trustee of the Princeton Theological Seminary, and a member of the American Philosophical Society.

"He married the former Miss Mary Blanchard of Princeton in 1894, who is his only near survivor".

William Henry Magie came to Illinois with his parents as a child, and when they removed to Kansas in 1869, went with them. In his youth he spent a year working in a drugstore in Pittsburg, Kans. where he formed his intention of becoming a physician. He entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons in St. Louis, Mo., and in 1883 went to Duluth, Minn, where he began the practice of Medicine. He remained there until his death. He retired in 1927. Was a zealous devotee of his profession and the public welfare; and was President of the Minnesota State Medical Association; a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons; a Fellow of the American Medical Association, and a Fellow of the Western Surgical Association.

He could remember that as a boy he marched in Abraham Lincoln's funeral procession in Chicago.
